

Q. Are you interested in Japanese culture?

Q. Would you like to see a presentation given by high school students from the Tohoku area of Japan?

Q. Would you like to talk with some high school students that went to the Tohoku area in 2013?

Q. Would you like to share American traditional culture - and have fun - with the Japanese visitors by joining a square dance?

A. Sure, you would!

You are invited to come to the Kakehashi Community Event at Madison Country Day School (Madison, WI) on March 24. The event will be held in the school gym from 5:30 p.m. - 8:30 p.m. and will feature presentations by students visiting the U.S. as part of the Kakehashi Project as well as students who traveled to Tohoku in 2013 as part of the Kizuna Project. Following the presentations, get ready to swing your partner and do-si-do during the square dance!

For information or to RSVP, please contact Karen Hendrickson, teacher of Japanese language and culture, at khendrickson@madisoncountryday.org. Space is limited so please RSVP as soon as possible. Thank you!
